Mickey's Recap!

This week we have been doing a lot of comparing and contrasting between ourselves and characters in our books as well as comparing and contrasting the two books we have been reading. We learned a lot about Chloe and Sara Sydney's first days of school. We also discussed the words Classmate and routine. In math we got to explore all the different math manipulatives and learned about making AB patterns using a variety of them. For our letter this week we focused on the first letter of our names and even got to play with name puzzles.

A Glimpse into the Future!

Next week, our theme is My body. We are going to learn about basic body parts and where they are located as well as our sense of touch as we explore the importance of our skin. In math we are going to discover positional words and what they mean. In language time we are going to be predicting and making inferences.

What you can do at home.

1. This week we practiced AB patterns. Give your child a couple of two objects (socks and shoes, forks and spoons) Ask them to make a pattern with them. (sock, shoe, sock, shoe).
2. Write several names on paper and see if your child can recognize their name.
